Shaping a strategic future for urban forestry (Plenary session II)

Brief CV:

Clive Davies has spent most of his career as a green-space professional working in the natural environment sector. He initially trained as a geographer and has a particular interest in the spatial planning aspects of urban forestry in economic and social regeneration. In recent years he has become closely involved in the development of green infrastructure planning, ecosystem services, landscape ecology and multi-functionality at the landscape scale. In 2008, after 22 years as a senior manager in the public and voluntary sectors he set up his own practice, Clive Davies Associates which offers research and enabling support to his clients; he is a research fellow at Newcastle University and a CABE Space enabler in England and a long standing member of EFUF.
